Studying Multimedia Design at
Erhvervsakademi Aarhus
2018 – Currently

A big part of my grown-up years has been spent in a kitchen. I started working as a dishwasher back in 2015 when I lived in Berlin. The hectic and exciting kitchen-workspace fascinated me and made me search for an opportunity to work fulltime with cuisine. I found my way to Testrup Højskole and have ended up staying there for the last 4 years, working both fulltime as a chef, preparing food for the 120 students and teachers daily, but also as kitchen help in busy times when the school is housing events or longer courses.

After traveling in South East Asia for half a year, I decided I was ready for new challenges. So, I helped starting the, at the time, brand new café in Aarhus called Landmad.

After the café started running, I backed out of the project and returned to Testrup Højskole.

It wasn't only a passion for cuisine I picked up in Berlin. I also found a profound love for electronic music and the Berlin club scene. After a year or so, I bought my first DJ-controller and started mixing. Today I mix at all kinds of occasions from weddings to underground raves. I spend way too much money on vinyls and way too much time mixing ridiculous tracks together.

As for now, I study Multimedia Design and love it!
